

40 Years Young in May 2013.

We have already begun planning for our 40th Anniversary

We are seeking your recollections, anecdotes, funny stories, fond memories and the like to be compiled into a PILOT monograph. Feel free to write something below and mail it in or send it along via. e-mail to:

“The first PILOT weekend I attended was in the Spring of 2002. It was a very cold, windy, rainy Saturday, and instead of painting fences, we were to white wash the Buckingham House kitchen. It was warm, the fireplace was roaring, the company was good; but the white wash was NOT going on smoothly. Our arms were dying.

After lunch, the supervisor said that we needed more lime, and the head of building and grounds said that there were ten bags of white wash in the cellar.

No wonder our arms were killing us. We had been using garden lime and it was going on like paste. Since then, Rosenfeld here I come!” (2002)
